PCN Strategies Continues to work with Lockheed Martin and the Federal Aviation Administration on NISC

PCN Strategies has continued its work with the FAA on the NISC project through consulting and information technology professionals. PCN has provided this service through Lockheed Martin over the past year and will continue throughout 2008. PCN has been integral in providing systems support, application development and design.

“The FAA is in a tremendous transition period with its IT and we are happy to support them on this project” said Chief Executive Officer Michael Rosinbum. “We understand the complexity of the project and where it needs to be at the conclusion for the public and Congressional oversight”.
